

Performance alleviates all doubt.

This refers to sports, but also to life. All of you who feel you deserve a chance, be ready, as your chance will come. When it does, your performance will do one of two things.

1) You will leave no doubt that you are the right person for the position. Be it the starting quarterback on the football team, the starting setter on the volleyball team, or the next president of the company, your excellent performance will let everyone know you have earned the position.

or

2) You will leave no doubt that you have not yet earned the position. If your performance is lack luster or not up to par, you will have made the statement that you are not ready for the position.

Understand that this is the most positive position you can be in. You control of your destiny with what you want to earn.

Now, I dare you to prepare to perform to the utmost of your ability.

Work hard, work smart
